

Tuesday, June 23rd at 7:00 PM
Gonzaga University School of Law Courtroom
721 North Cincinnati Street

Featuring:

Eric de Place, Policy Director at Sightline Institute

Eric spearheads Sightline Institute's work on energy policy. He is known as a leading expert on coal and oil export plans in the Pacific Northwest, and he is considered an authority on a range of issues connected to fossil fuel transport.

Twa-le Abrahamson, Spokane Tribal Air Quality Coordinator

Twa-le has spoken at conferences and rallies on coal and oil, and testified at hearings on both. In 2012, she and KYRS radio won a Clean Air Excellence Award for her work on clean air and educating the reservation about it with her radio show, Inner Tribal Beats, on KYRS.

Ben Stuckart, Spokane City Council President

Ben led the City of Spokane to be the first on the West Coast to pass a resolution on oil trains. He has worked with other leaders on coal lease issues in Washington, D.C. and met with Secretary of Transportation Foxx to lobby on oil safety rules. A member of the Safe Energy Leadership Alliance, he has spoken at at least six rallies on coal and oil and two other oil forums.

Jen Wallis, International Steering Committee Co-Chair of Railroad Workers United

Jen has been a freight conductor/switchman in Seattle since 2004. She was a whistleblower against BNSF and won her case in Federal Court. A founding member and current International Steering Committee co-chair of Railroad Workers United (RWU), she has spoken at several conferences. RWU seeks to bridge the gap between labor and environmental concerns on safety issues.

Sponsored by: Sightline Institute, The Lands Council, The Sierra Club, Spokane Riverkeeper, Gonzaga Environmental Law Caucus, Power Past Coal, Stand Up To Oil, and Earth Ministry

For more information, contact:
Laura Ackerman
lackerman@landscouncil.org
(509) 209-2404
www.landscouncil.org